- With a few exceptions the public health relevance is rather low (some of the later lectures try to adress this issue, but it is not enough.
- By the description from AAU information, I had anticipated and expected that the content would be more related to occupational safety. More applicable and practice-focused on a HSE Manager's work tasks and job description.
- disorganized in black board made it hard to know what to read for the lecture

- Especially the first month is discouraging as it has very little health relevance.
- my group did more work than the other groups, we were told to read about an incident research it and do a presentation, but we were the only one who did this the other groups didn't do this unfair treatment. Just want to be treated equally which she is not capable of doing, she did not do anything when confronted with this information she just said you have gotten something out of it you learned something. Then she got mad at me for complaining about it. I just wanted fair treatment, this I did not get so now I have done more work in this class and nothing to show for it.

- We have had barely any time to do the final and no one knew what was going to be on the final until 5 days before hand in very disorganized

- In the beginning the uploaded documents on blackboard were unstructured. After the teacher was made aware of this, she created folders which made it easier to access the relevant material.

- I must say that there is simply too many things not relevant to public health expect for the patient safety part. It would be better to do the class without Aalborg, and focus on health. The lectures ends up trying to appease both PH and Aalborg, and ends up somewhere in the middle where noone really benefits. There are also good elements of the module, but the lack of focus overshines it. I think that Hannah did the best she could given the circumstances, but the module needs focus to make it good. Sorry

- The teacher is hard to understand and her English is improvable. Her slides are out of content sometimes.
- The teacher's english and especially the pronunciation is not very good. Lecture slides were often out of context and it was not possible to understand them without reading the book. The teacher also failed to explain the slides properly, often left parts of the slides unmentioned or did not finish sentences. The guest lecturer was very good!
- The presentation style was a little bit hard to follow
- Teacher's level of English is too low to explain the methods and even to express her thoughts or to answer our questions in detail
- I would strongly recommend that she steps down as a teacher since she is not organized and has problems communicating. I do not feel like she is qualified to teach. How is SDU going to give me credit for the extra work I did?? The students are being not taken seriously and the school does not deal well with complaints about their teachers.
